THE BOOKSTORE: A GUIDE TO FALL RUSH

During the next few weeks, students, faculty members, and University Bookstore personnel will face the farrago of "fall rush" with its inevitable line-ups and lost tempers. Perhaps an explanation of what the customer might experience as well as a look at what happens in the Bookstore's ordering process will make this rather trying time, if not less frustrating, less bewildering.

When a customer enters the Bookstore, he or she will be asked to leave personal belongings—books, briefcases, shopping bags, etc.—in an area designated for this purpose. While this policy may aggravate some and seem questionable to others, the restriction is one of the few ways which maintains security and assures that the inevitable few will not succeed in stealing their way through their academic year. There are two floors in the store and each is serviced with cash registers. Items from any department can be paid for on either floor, but customers will not be allowed to re-enter the store with merchandise once it is purchased.

Texts will be found on the lower floor. They are arranged by Department (for example, "Classics," "Anthropology") and subsequently in numerical order according to course numbers. The exception to this general organization concerns the Department of English. While senior English courses are arranged according to number, there is a separate section for all 200-level courses. Texts, here, are arranged alphabetically by author. Since several editions of the same work are often used by different professors, the customers are cautioned to purchase texts after they have attended their class where specific book lists will be given. If a book cannot be found on the shelves, a sign will indicate that they are on a specific lettered pallet in the aisles.

The Bookstore has two computer print-outs at the Information Desk (lower floor). They can be of invaluable service to the customer. Both contain twelve thousand text entries representing some nine thousand titles. Together, they indicate what books are on order and the quantity, if they have been received, and where a specific text is to be found on the floor. The alphabetical print-out lists texts by primary author and may indicate that a certain book is used by more than one instructor. The other print-out lists texts by course numbers; however, section numbers are not included. Both are up-dated twice weekly in September so the customer is assured of the most accurate information possible. Since each print-out lists required texts only, instructors are urged to inform students which books are required and which are recommended.

Payment for merchandise can be made either by cash or by cheque. There are different check-out cash registers for each and signs are posted accordingly. Payment by cheque requires two pieces of identification; the students' identification card is mandatory while a driver's license or credit card may serve as a second security check.

A problem is often encountered about returning books. A definite policy is maintained by the bookstore: No books can be returned for refund until 20 September. Returns for "fall rush" will be accepted up to 30 September. Commencing 1 October, books must be returned for a refund within seven calendar days. In all cases, book returns must be accompanied by the correct Bookstore sales receipt. No exceptions are made.

During "fall rush," the Bookstore will maintain the following hours:

Friday, 10 September, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Saturday, 11 September, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
Monday, 13 September, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Tuesday, 14 September, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Wednesday, 15 September, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Thursday, 16 September, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Friday, 17 September, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Saturday, 18 September, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
Commencing Monday, 20 September, regular store hours will be:
Weekdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Behind "fall rush" is the organized, although perhaps frenzied, mind of Bill Quick. His name is punned upon, but dependable. Faced with such facts as fluctuating course enrolments, course changes, late appointments, and varied requisitions, Mr. Quick relies a great deal on past experience. He believes that "estimated" enrolments are just that and therefore surveys each course history carefully before deciding how many texts to order. His headaches not only include the problems of the publishing industry in Canada—with the fact, for example, that more often than not he has to deal with a branch that serves as a middleman for a parent company in Britain or the United States—but with the frustration of a five- to nine-week delay if a book is out of stock. However, he enjoys a good working relationship with faculty members even though he admits that at a university of this size there are always bound to be problems.

One concern of his is the fact that instructors will not make themselves known to him—unless there is a problem. He would like to see every instructor come in personally to check on his or her own material. Mr. Quick is, if anything, modest. He is more satisfied in telling customers that the Bookstore is one of the few in Canada to offer a five percent discount on the books they buy than in telling them what he went through to get those books on time. He and other Bookstore staff members deserve much credit—a fact to be remembered when standing in a line-up with those required textbooks.

FRESHMAN INTRODUCTION WEEK

University classes will commence on Monday, 13 September, and the occasion will be marked by a series of activities during the period of 13 to 19 September, Freshman Introduction Week, planned to better acquaint students with the campus and to increase their involvement in University life.

Weekdays there will be live music and a beergarden from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Students' Union Building courtyard and live music each evening at Room at the Top.

Afternoons at 2 p.m. there will be sports demonstrations in the quad. A series of lectures is planned: on Wednesday, 15 September, at 8 p.m. in Tory Lecture Theatre II "Canadian support of racist sport"; on Thursday, 16 September, at 1 p.m. in SUB Theatre "Marx and Christ: a dialogue," and at 7:30 p.m. in SUB Theatre "Sport, politics and the nation state," a panel forum; on Friday, 17 September, at 1 p.m. in SUB Theatre "Israeli Jews and Palestinian Arabs: what future?" a debate.

Special events on the weekend will include: intercollegiate football between the Golden Bears and the University of Saskatchewan Huskies on Saturday, 18 September, at 2 p.m. in the Varsity Stadium and "Teahouse of the September Moon," live folk music on Sunday, 19 September, in Room at the Top. For further information about Freshman Introduction Week contact the Students' Union, telephone 432-4241.

KIDNEY TRANSPLANTS INCREASING

In the past month or so, there has been a surprising, and encouraging, increase in the number of kidney transplant operations at the University of Alberta Hospital. So far in 1976 there have been thirteen successful transplant operations; this number almost surpasses the 1975 total.

Since 25 July, five men and two women have undergone transplants. On the weekend of 7 and 8 August, four people received kidneys from two donors. The two days of operations marked quite an accomplishment for the hospital's transplant team, which is composed of nephrologists, blood bank and tissue typing laboratory staff, nurses, operating room staff, and transplant surgeons.

A transplant team spokesman says he is hopeful that the increased number of kidney transplant operations is indicative of an increasing public interest in kidney donations. Since the University of Alberta Hospital serves as the kidney transplant centre in northern Alberta and the hospital receives notice of available kidney donations from other hospitals, "there is an excellent chance that donated kidneys will be transplanted" because the hospital "has more than forty patients who would benefit from a transplant operation" and kidneys that cannot be matched at the University Hospital can be taken to other centres to be transplanted. On 25 July, a donated kidney available in Chicago was matched with the tissue of an Edmonton patient; the kidney was placed on a perfusion machine, which maintains it, and was flown to Edmonton where it was successfully transplanted.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The regular meeting of the University's Board of Governors was held on Friday, 3 June.

Students' Union Art Gallery

The Board approved a recommendation of the Finance Committee that $4,000 be granted to the Students' Union Art Gallery for 1976-77, in compensation for its use by the University.

An annual grant of $2,000 to the Students' Union for use of its Art Gallery was approved by the Board in March 1971. However, with the closure of the Gallery in 1972, the grant was discontinued. Since the Gallery's reopening in 1974, it has been used regularly by the Department of Art and Design and other University departments.

Donation of trees to Muttart Conservatory

The donation of thirteen large specimen trees, valued at about $2,400, to the City of Edmonton Parks and Recreation Department for the Muttart Conservatory was also approved.

The University's Devonian Botanic Gardens and Department of Botany have an informal agreement with the Muttart Conservatory to try to complement each other's programs as much as possible. This donation of trees from the Botanic Gardens accords with this agreement. The Board Finance Committee has asked that the Conservatory provide some recognition of the donation.

The trees being sent to the conservatory include specimens of three considered "living fossils." These are the Dawn Redwood, which was known only as a fossil until 1942 when a team of Chinese botanists discovered a grove in inland China; the Ginko, which is no longer found in a wild state and is now best represented by stands in Japanese monasteries; and the Swamp Cypress, found in the swamps of the southeastern United States where it often grows standing entirely in water. Fossil evidence of all three can be found in the geological formations of Alberta.

The remainder of the specimens being donated are other types of exotic conifers.

The donated trees have been used by the Department of Botany for teaching purposes but have outgrown that use and have been replaced by younger specimens.

Detailed preliminary operating budget approved

The Board approved the detailed 1976-77 preliminary operating budget for the University, with projected general revenues of $107,346,000, projected net expenditures of $111,148,000, and a deficit of $2,302,800. This deficit will be charged against the operating surplus after provision has been made for budget savings and income improvement in the amount of $1,500,000.

The preliminary operating budget for 1976-77 was approved by the Board on 2 April.

The instructor for this course is Murray B. Budd. He is Manager of Merrill Lynch, Royal Securities Limited, Edmonton, and has worked in the investment field for seven years. The course runs for ten Tuesday afternoons, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. from 28 September to 30 November. The fee is $60 including materials, and those interested are advised to register early since course enrolment is limited. For further information contact the Faculty of Extension or telephone 432-5066.

MANAGEMENT OF PERSONAL FINANCES

One responsibility for any individual or family is to select realistic financial goals and pursue the most direct course to reach them. Usually this requires some knowledge or help since there are many possibilities to be considered. To be financially secure, for instance, one may buy a home, purchase life insurance, or invest in the shares of a corporation.

Choice is governed by how much a person or a family can afford to spend, and this, in turn, depends on three main factors: general economic conditions, the type of career or profession followed, and the personal management of financial resources.

In this course, taught by Robert Gawreluck, the focus is on the personal management of financial resources within existing economic conditions. Such topics as personal and family budgeting, consumer credit, insurance principles, and will and estate planning will be discussed, although at the beginning of the course students will be polled for areas of special interest and the course content may be modified as a result.

The fee is $50, including materials, and the course will be taught on twelve consecutive Wednesday evenings beginning 29 September, 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Registrations will be accepted until the class limit has been reached. Although no cancellations will be accepted after 22 September, names may be substituted until the date of the course. For further information contact the Faculty of Extension or telephone 432-5066.
